Assignment 2.1: Empowered to Lead

1. Unique Creation – Psalm 139:13–14

Psalm 139:13–14 reminds me that God created everyone with different strengths and abilities (New International Version, 2011). It helps me feel more confident about myself and reminds me not to compare my journey with others. In my career, I have learned that I am good at solving problems, learning new technologies, and staying patient when things get challenging. As I continue learning about AI and machine learning, I want to use these strengths to grow professionally and become someone others can depend on.

2. Stewardship of Gifts – 1 Peter 4:10

I believe God has given me the ability to learn, think critically, and help others. Working in cybersecurity has taught me how important it is to protect people's information and help organizations stay secure. I also enjoy sharing what I learn with my colleagues and helping others when they face technical challenges. First Peter 4:10 encourages us to use our gifts to serve others (New International Version, 2011). I believe being a good leader is not just about having knowledge or giving instructions. It is also about being supportive, sharing knowledge, and helping others succeed.

3. Seeking Wisdom – James 1:5

There are times when I am unsure about the right decision, especially when dealing with new technologies or unexpected challenges at work. With AI becoming more common, I understand that making decisions requires careful thinking and responsibility. James 1:5 reminds me that I can seek God's wisdom when I need guidance (New International Version, 2011). I can make this part of my daily life through prayer, patience, and learning from others. I want to become a leader who makes thoughtful decisions and treats people with honesty and respect.
